ADVERTISE.

When times are hard and cash is low, And trade comes in most awful slow, What is it that I would advise?
Advertise.
When folks go streaming past the door, And never step inside the store, My best advice, do not despair—
Advertise.
When drawer or pocket both seem thin, And much goes out and naught comes in, If you would be exceeding wise,
Advertise.
For thus it is with men of brain, Finding their fortune on the wane, And hoping they may take a rise,
Advertise.
It never yet was known to fail, To brighten times and make a sale; To bind your luck with golden ties,
Advertise.
And so what's'er you have to sell, Do it at once and do it well, Keep it before the public eye—
Advertise.
Se, let your name be Jones or Grimes, Try this one time and see hard times; You'll find herein the secret lies—

NOT LOST.

The look of sympathy, the gentle word, Spoke so low that only angels heard; The secret art of pure self-sacrifice, Unseen by men, but marked by angels' eyes— They are not lost.
The sacred music of a tender strain, Whung from a poet's heart by grief and pain, And chanted softly, with doubt and fear, To busy crowds who scarcely pause to hear— These are not lost.
The silent tears that fall at dead of night, O'er soiled robes, that once were pure and white, The prayers that rise like incense from the soul, Longing for Christ to make it clean and whole— These are not lost.

MERE BEAUTY.

A Comparison Which Should Ever Be Borne in Mind.
[Brooklyn Eagle.]
It is natural that men should pursue beautiful women; but it would be well to remember that there are qualities of far more importance than mere personal charms. True, we may be fascinated with a dark, lustrous and beautiful eye, the crimson blush of the cheek, a graceful, symmetrical form; but, after all, the inquiry should be: is there a soul within? Is there elevation of thought, generous principles, noble purposes, a cultivated intellect? If not, what else would a woman of beautiful personal appearance be but as a doll or gilded toy? How long could a man of genius be induced to worship at such a shrine? How long before his affections would assume the form of hatred or contempt? Powerful passions and strong affections invariably accompany the man of genius.
Hence it is clear that unless personal charms envelop a cultivated mind, as well as the sterling qualities of virtue, the noblest impulses of affection in such a man will soon be extinguished, and his fondest hopes lighted, in the selection of a partner for life. Nothing is more desirable to a man of genius in this life than the ardent affections of a good, sensible woman; and on the other hand, no offering on earth is so acceptable to a woman as the sincerest affections of a man of genius and truth.

Mark Twain's Hotel.

Having lately opened a harem, I send you these, my rules and regulations:
This house will be considered strictly temperate.
None but the brave deserve the fair.
Persons owing bills for board will be bored for bills.
Boarders who do not wish to pay in advance, are requested to advance and pay.
Boarders are required to wait on colored cooks—for meals.
Sheets will be nightly change, once in six months.
Double boarders can have two beds with a room in it, or two rooms with a bed in it, as they choose.
Boarders are requested to pull off their boots if they can conveniently do so.
Beds with or without bugs.
All monies and other valuables are to be left in the care of the proprietor. This is to be insisted on, as he will be responsible for no other losses.
Inside matters will not be furnished editors under any circumstances.
Relatives coming to make a six months' visit will be welcomed; but when they bring half their household furniture, virtue will cease to be a forbearance.
Single men and their families will not be boarded.
Beds with or without board.
Dreams will be charged for by the dozen.
Nightmares will be hired out at reasonable rates.
Stone vaults will be furnished to snoring boarders, and the proprietor will in no wise be responsible for the broken tin-pans of other ears.

LIFE WITHOUT A SOUL.

A Dead Man Made to Move and Talk.

The New York Mercury relates a most remarkable case of resuscitation as having recently occurred in Paris.
Mons. de Docteur Buss d'Alembert, a noted French physician and surgeon, has long held that life might be prolonged indefinitely in some classes of patients; such, for instance, as those who have suffered no fatal lesions, but who are perishing from anemia or the degeneration or non-production of proper blood corpuscles. Until the 9th of last November he found no one willing to accept as true his seemingly visionary theory, but having secured a suitable patient for experimental purposes in the person of M. Nathan Isaac, a near relative, by the way, of Baron Rothschild, he immediately proceeded to demonstrate the truth of his hitherto unsubstantiated assertion. Mr. Isaac was dying of an anemia disorder, and having heard of Dr. d'Alembert's theory, he sent for him on the date above mentioned, having discharged his family physician, and placed himself wholly under the care of Dr. A. Upon his arrival, Dr. d'Alembert found his patient at the point of death, and the more strongly to demonstrate the tenability of his belief, he determined to allow Mr. Isaac to expire before trying his experiments. No stimulants being exhibited, Mr. Isaac quietly breathed his last on the morning of November 11, at 4:30 o'clock.
The body was then removed to the office of Dr. d'Alembert, when the experiments were conducted as follows: Two assistants then began with dry friction to shampoo the entire surface of the body. This being thoroughly done, the doctor made an incision reaching to the spine at the first vertebra, and buried there a smooth copper plate attached to one wire of the electric battery. The incision was neatly sewed up to hold the plate in place, and the cicatrice covered with collodion or other tincture of gun-cotton. Another copper plate, connecting with the same pole of the battery, was buried at the base of the skull, and still a third, of zinc, connecting with the opposite pole of the battery, was buried in similar manner at the base of the sternum. Everything being in readiness, an almost imperceptible stream of electricity was turned on and so gradually increased that it was fully an hour before any twitching of the muscles could be discovered. At the end of an hour, as above stated, a slight tremor of the muscles became discernible, and at the end of the second hour, very minute globules of perspiration could be seen with the magnifying glass upon the glands of the throat, axilla and groins. At this point artificial perspiration was begun and kept up. Toward the close of the third hour the flesh had a moist feeling, the entire surface of the body being covered with a light perspiration. From this time to the end of the fourth hour the patient slowly recovered, at the end of which time he fell into a sound sleep, from which he awoke refreshed, and began a conversation, perfectly rational. The battery was attached to Mr. Isaac, and the stimulants continued, though at longer intervals, and in larger quantities. The most singular part of the truly strange story is the fact that, although Mr. Isaac recovered his intellect with the renewal of his life, yet his moral faculties were entirely dormant. When his child and wife were brought to him, he evinced no emotion whatever, and while his memory recalled every incident of his former life—and all of his acquaintances said that his conversations and ideas were more brilliant than ever before—yet it was impossible to call up any association that was ought save indifferent to him. When informed of his mother's death (though he had been the most devoted of sons), he remarked, "Well, she was old enough heaven knows."
Though formerly very devout in his observance of religion, he had become blasphemous. He would not tell the truth if possible to lie, and seemed to take a most intense delight to steal and secrete about his person any object, even of the most trivial value. He made frequent attempts to rob the doctor of his watch while bending over him to administer stimulants.
The blasphemies and obscene conduct and conversation of Mr. Isaac having become too horrible, it was determined to discontinue the stimulus and disconnect the battery. This being done the fatal signs of hiccoughing began, and in thirty minutes the animal heat and all signs of life had disappeared, and death had resumed its sway. Immediately on his dissolution the eye sank, the skin shriveled, a hideous stench pervaded the whole apartment, and the corpse had all the appearance of having been dead for weeks. Thus ended the most remarkable experiment on record.
Dr. d'Alembert says that prior to this experiment he had made several on the bodies of cats and dogs, starved to death for the purpose of experimenting.

The happy dreams that gladden all our youth, Whose dreams had less of self and more of truth; The chimera's faith, so tranquil and so sweet, Which set like Mary at the Master's feet— These are not lost.
The kindly plans devised for others good, So seldom guessed, so little understood; The quiet, steadfast love that strove to win Some wanderer from the ways of sin— These are not lost.
Not lost, O Lord! for, in Thy city bright Our eyes shall see the past by clearer light, And things long hidden from our gaze below Thou wilt reveal, and we shall surely know— These are not lost.

Don't Expect too Much.

One of the first lessons in life that humanity should learn is to be contented with the advantages arising from one set of circumstances, and not regret those belonging to the contrary condition of things. The high-spirited, active and energetic person will not be obedient, patient, easily resigned; the quiet, patient, apathetic person, who gives no trouble by inconvenient activities or insubordinate tempers, will not be easily roused to exertion, or induced to take the lead even when necessary. A man chooses for his wife a woman of marked mental ability—one who can understand his deepest thoughts, and he is quite right in his choice. He has chosen the malt; but how about the meal? Malt is an excellent thing in its way, and no one has a word to say in its disfavor; only—you cannot have both, and malt precludes meal. When he expects to find, on his first difference of opinion, sweet, womanly submission, which most men prize more than any other quality, he finds instead unyielding self-assertion. His malt or womanly independence destroyed all possibility of wisely obedience.
Or we will suppose the man chooses a child-woman for sentiment and the affections, or a doll woman for a show; here also he cannot reasonably expect to find more than one thing for which he covenanted. He has no right to feel aggrieved because he cannot have both meal and malt. And thus it is in all things. Take into your service first class domestics, and pay them good wages; but do not expect they will allow themselves to be ordered around like so many pauper apprentices. Or take low-class servants, ignorant and inert, who have to learn everything, and do not expect them to act like trained servants. You make cheapness your first consideration; then do not look for perfection. You cannot have both together. If you go to first-rate places, you must get first-rate prices; if you go to second-rate places for cheapness, you will not have superior wares dealt out to you. Choose which you will have, and content your soul with your gain; but do not ask to have it in meal and malt, too, for you will only give yourself a headache to no purpose.

Josh Billings Insures his Life.

I kum to the konklusion, lately, that life was so onartian that the only way for me to stand a fair chance with other folks was to get my life insured, and so I kalled on the agent of the "Garden Angel Life Insurance Co." answered the following questions, which was put to me over the top of a pare of gold specks by a silk fat feller with a little round gray head, and as pretty a little belly on him as any man ever owned:
1st. Are you married or single? if so, please state how long you have bin that way.
2d. Are you subject to fits, and if so do you have any more than one at a time?
3d. What is your precise fiteing weight?
4th. Did you ever have any ancestors and if so, how many, and what sex?
5th. What is your legal opinion of the constitutionality of the 10 commandments?
6th. Do you ever have any night mares?
7th. Are you married or single, or are you a bachelor?
8th. Do you believe in a future state; if you do, state it?
9th. What are your private sentiments about a rush of rats to the head? Can it be done successfully?
10th. Have you ever committed suicide, and if no, how did it seem to affect you?
After answering the above questions like a man in the affirmative, the silk little fat fellow with the gold specks on, ceded I was insured for life, and probably would remain so for a term of years. I thanked him, and I smiled one of my most pensive old smiles.

What Ruins Children.

One of the greatest defects of this age is the "fastness" of our boys and girls. And every bit of it is traceable back to the homes, where idle news carriers drop in continually, and are permitted to unfold their budget of gossip and scandal. Children hear more than is ever believed, and the hints, nods and hints that they catch at intervals excite their curiosity, and to satisfy which chances are not wanting. But to prevent betraying that they hear, they also learn to be very shy, so that, in time, they are able to build block-houses, make kites, or even pretend to study their lessons, and yet hear every word that is said. Is it a wonder that by the time the reserve and purity of the mother's mind is worn out, the daughter is just in the same condition? With the difference, that, while the mother has family ties that serve as a check, and has the judgment of mature years, the daughter is hampered by none of these, so that she stands at the threshold of life, she is like a boat tossed out on the sea, without a pilot, save her own desire, and the crew, instead of being all good influences of the past, are just the reverse. It will be a miracle if she sails through safely, and if she should sink we must accept the penalty, and know that it is the work of our own hands.

Cromwell Items.

CROMWELL, Ky., March 19, 1877.
Editor Herald:
We are still improving; new side-walks being laid down all over town.
Mendell & Bro's are buying goods for a new store at Woodberry, Ky. They are energetic men, and deserve to be successful.
Frank Cooper has traded his property in Mollery with R. R. Paxton for a house and lot in Cromwell, where he intends moving for the purpose of putting up tobacco for Mendell & Kahn.
There has been over one hundred thousand hoop-poles shipped from this place since last November. If we had the pumpkins, we could beat Posey county, Indiana.
Oscar Stevens and wife are visiting friends and relations in Beaver Dam.
Miss Emma Wile is visiting in Evansville.
W. G. Tilford has 2,400 saw logs for the Evansville spring market.
We have heard it hinted that Sam. E. Hill wanted to represent us in the next Senate Stand up Sam, you can count us one.

John Wile has a string band, composed of himself, Eddie and Harry. Eddie is ten years of age and Harry six. Combined height of band, nine feet and six inches. If you think you can beat them in discoursing "sweet music" or in heights come out and try it and find yourself mistaken.
He came from Beaver Dam, and told his wife that he had heard Tilden was elected President, and—hic—he just took one drink; and he heard afterward that Hayes held the office, and—hic—took another drink, and when he heard something about a Returning Board, with eight spots on one side and seven on the other; and—hic—took another drink, and in fact I—hic—am not well.
He has been wearing his hair cut in the latest style for married gentlemen—that is, close cut on what he had left.

Reasonable Assertions.

A party of Miners in the Black Hills recently compared eyes and ears over a camp-fire. One said: "When I was coming to the Hills I looked for Indians until I could see a musquito a mile away." Another said that his eyes were weak, but he could see gnats jumping around on the rocks four miles off. The next man had listened for Indians until he heard the mountain sheep butting against the horn of the Big Horn Mountains 300 miles away. The fourth, with his head on his pillow, had strained his ears until he heard the Chinese nailing tea-boxes. The fifth, in crossing the Rocky Mountains had found a petrified forest—big trees turned into solid stone. As he loitered on the edge, a deer started across the valley and was transformed in a moment into solid stone. A bird flew past him and perched upon a branch, began to sing. Suddenly the bird was changed to stone. The song she was singing was also petrified, hanging down from the beak of the bird—a cold, hard stone. It is about time for a great American novelist to go out to the Hills and write about these interesting miners—for $10 a word.

Where the Sun Jumps a Day.

Chatham Island, lying off the coast of New Zealand, in the South Pacific Ocean, is peculiarly situated, as it is one of the habitable points of the globe where the day of the week changes. It is just in line of demarcation between dates. There high twelve on Sunday or noon ceases, and instantly Monday meridian begins. Sunday comes into a man's house on the East side and becomes Monday by the time it passes out the Western door. A man sits down to his noonday dinner on Sunday, and it is Monday noon before he finishes it.

There Saturday is Sunday and Sunday is Monday, and Monday becomes suddenly transferred into Tuesday. It is a good place for people who have lost much time by taking an early start they can always get a day ahead on Chatham Island. It took philosophers and geographers a long time to settle the puzzle of where Sunday ceased and Monday began with a man traveling West fifteen degrees an hour or with the sun. It is to be hoped that the next English arctic expedition will settle the other mooted question: "Where will one stop who travels North-west continually?"

A New Yorker threw a mince pie at his wife and she got a divorce. A man who will wantonly squander a mince pie that way, when hundreds of New Yorkers are in a starving condition, doesn't deserve to have a wife. Why didn't he throw the pie-dish.—[Norristown Herald.]

A mother, trying to get her little daughter of three years to sleep one night said, "Anna, why don't you try to go to sleep?" "I am trying," "Well, haven't shut your eyes." "Well, can't help it; uns comes unbuttoned."

A Kentucky girl deserted her recently espoused lord when she discovered that one of his legs was a wooden one. He might have urged that she was also wooden and won.—[Worcester Press.]

Educating Boys for Husbands.

How many unhappy girls have paid dearly for the early bringing up of their husbands, who, after the first glamour of love had passed, treat their wives as they were allowed to treat their sisters, and as their fathers treat their mothers—carelessly, disrespectfully, with a total want of that considerate tenderness which is worth more than all the passionate love in the world. This class, though they may muster outside as excellent husbands, never do anything really bad, and possessing many good and attractive qualities yet contriving somehow to quietly break the poor woman's heart, or harden it into a passive acceptance of pain which is more fatal to married happiness than even temporary estrangement.

We reserve the right to strike from any communication whatever we may think proper. Persons need not be offended if we do not publish just what they write in the manner written. It frequently happens that for want of space and time, some portion of a letter is left out; and again, for other reasons, we may think it better to cut, slash and destroy. Some may be received too late for the purposes for which they are intended, and others may not be what we want. So our friends need not think we treat them unkindly in anything we do about the matter.

We solicit correspondence and all items of news which, if published or not, is intended to offend no one. Write plainly and only on one side of the paper. The name of the writer must be given, not for publication unless desired, but as a means of information to us. Remember that a writer is responsible for what he says.

The Presidential steal was endorsed by the Republicans in New Hampshire last week.

Joe Goss pleads guilty to prize fighting before the Judge of the quarterly court of Boone county and was sentenced to pay the lowest fine $220.

JOHN J. KNOX has been appointed by President Hayes as controller of the currency. The Senate confirmed the appointment.

The German citizens held a mass meeting in Washington, D. C., recently and endorsed the appointment of Carl Schurz as Secretary of the Interior.

In our last issue we announced the resignation of Senator Cameron, of Pennsylvania. The Legislature being in session, his son Dan, was elected to fill the vacancy.

The nomination of Fred Douglass as marshal of the District of Columbia, has been confirmed by a full Republican vote and some Democratic votes.

THERE are four hundred and forty-one thousand, four hundred and seventy-two school children in Kentucky.

The loss to owners of sheep in this State by dogs last year amounts to $74,360.00. This is more than all the dogs in christendom ever were, or ever will be worth.

HON. H. P. BELL was elected to Congress on the 13th inst., from the Ninth District of Georgia, to fill the vacancy caused by Hon. Benjamin Hill's election to the United States Senate. Mr. Bell was the regular Democratic candidate.

We have received volume 1 No. 1 of the Rambler, a sixteen column monthly published at Island Station, McLean county, Ky. It is a spicily lively little sheet and exhibits considerable brightness.

THE next House of Representatives will be Democratic and it ought to refuse to appropriate a single dollar to defray the expenses of the army only on the condition that soldiers are not to be used to interfere in State affairs as has been done in the South for so long.

FRED DOUGLASS, of color, has been appointed marshal of the District of Columbia, an office worth from ten to twelve thousand dollars per annum. This does not look much like reform. Fred was badly mixed up in the Freedman's Bureau, and it was through his influence and connection with it, that so many of his race were induced to deposit their money which they were so nicely swindled out of.

The amendment to the Constitution of New Hampshire, which proposed to strike out the word "protestant" from the bill of rights, was defeated at the late election, and yet, that liberal high-toned God and morality party, known as the "Great Union Republican party" have a decided majority in the State.

It is more than probable that Hayes refuses to recognize Hampton and Nicholls, with a view of bargain and sale by which his administration can control the election of Senators from those States so as to keep the Senate Republican until after the next presidential election as it has been found very convenient to have a Republican Senate on the eve of a presidential count and Hayes is now scheming to be his own successor.

HAYES said in his inaugural address that it was his purpose to see that all the Southern States enjoyed "the inestimable blessings of self government" and yet, after nearly a month's delay Louisiana and South Carolina are under the same regime as during the reign of the Grant Dynasty with a prospect of remaining in statu quo for some time to come. His "Fraudulent" made a false promise when he promised self government to those States.

State Quo

This is the conclusion reached by the cabinet last week on Louisiana affairs. Foster, Hayes' mouth piece in congress said, that the flag should wave over States not provinces, and Hayes wrote him a letter endorsing the speech, but by a vote of four to three (not eight to seven) Hayes' cabinet advise that the soldiers be kept in Louisiana under the same orders and conditions as for the last three or four months, thus giving hope to each party and deferring the question of recognition to a future time. Another commission is to be sent down to investigate the condition of affairs, as though Hayes, cabinet and the whole country did not already know the facts about it. The business interests of the State are thus kept prostrated, and the people of the State are at sea without a rudder or a compass. Hayes talked beautifully about the inestimable blessings of self government, and yet, he keeps the soldiers of the United States in Louisiana. If the soldiers were withdrawn, which he could do in ten minutes, the people of the State would soon settle matters and determine who were their rulers. Hayes' Southern pacification policy does not seem to pan out well. The same uncertain indefinite action has been had in regard to South Carolina. Both Hampton and Chamberlain have been invited to Washington to confer with the President. There is a greater probability of Hampton's being recognized than there is of Nicholls, although Nicholls was elected by 8000 majority and Hampton by not one third as many. Blaine argued that Hayes could not refuse the recognition of Packard for his own title to the Presidency rested on the same vote, and it is quite likely that Hayes will finally take that view of it, sustain Packard and let the flag wave over a province four years longer.

A Just Retribution.

John D. Lee, one of the mormon elders, was shot to death by order of the United States Court, at Mountain Meadows, on Friday last. In September 1857 a train of Emigrants on their way from the States to California, were decoyed into Mountain Meadows to encamp for the night and there at the instance of the Mormon authorities they were attacked by the Indians, they held their own for a time with the Indians, when the Mormons under Lee, came under a flag of truce pretending to and them and got them to march out and give up their arms when at a given signal the whole of them, save a few children, were shot down in cold blood.

Yet after twenty years, this leader is shot in cold blood on the very same spot. He made a full confession implicating Brigham Young and all the mormon leaders. It is to be hoped that every one connected with the foul butchery will be speedily brought to justice, as they have escaped punishment long enough already.

WHEN the late House of Representatives elected L. H. Fitzhugh Door-keeper, a great hue and cry was raised in the Republican camp about it, because Fitzhugh had held the same position in the Congress. The epithet of "Rebel Congress," Confederate Congress, was freely used and the stock in trade was, that the Democrats wanted to put men in office who tried to destroy the government.

One of the first things President Hayes does is to nominate a man who fought against the Government, for a prominent position in his Cabinet, to become one of the advisers of the administration. These same men who were so fearful of Confederates getting power, sing out "that's all right." Oh, what consistency.

The Nelson Record says, "Mr Ray Coleman left at this office a goose egg, that weighs eleven ounces, beat it." Well now Murray we don't want to beat it, we want you to keep it to hatch out, so that the goose in your office will have a gosling to care for.

HON. W. R. HAYNES of Litchfield, is a candidate for the State Senate, from his district composed of Grayson, Breckenridge and Hancock counties. He has an opponent in the person of D. R. Murray, of Hancock County.

THE Blue Glass curative agency is still exciting considerable attention. General Pleasanton claims many remarkable cures from the treatment.

THE Frankfort Yeoman says: "The (Kentucky) River is on a stand." Well, well! We supposed it was in its bed.

THE Yeoman says: To show that we are a still potent people, Kentucky has 394,237 white children between the ages of six and twenty, an increase of 7,000 since last Auditor's report. There 47,235 negro children; a decrease of 1,250 since last Auditor's report.

Extra Session of Congress.

President Hayes will call an extra Session of Congress about the fourth of June next. The Lower House will probably devote the most of its time to determining who its members are. Notices of contests have already been filed with clerk Adams, in twenty-one cases. Twelve Democrats contest the seats of Republicans, and eight Republicans contest the seats of Democrats, and in one case the politics are not known to us. Below we give the list.

Jas. H. Achlin, Democrat, vs. Chester B. Durrall, Republican, from Louisiana; Thomas M. Patterson, Democrat, vs. James B. Belford, Republican, Colorado; J. S. Richardson, Democrat, vs. Joseph H. Kainey (old), Republican, South Carolina; Tillman, Democrat, vs. Robt. Small (colored), Republican, South Carolina; J. B. Elam, Democrat, vs. George L. Smith, Republican, Louisiana; Jere Haralson (colored), Republican, vs. Chas. M. Shelley, Democrat, Alabama; Saml. McDowell, Democrat, vs. Richard Williams, Republican, Oregon; L. C. Carpenter, Republican vs. D. Wyatt Aiken, Democrat, South Carolina; Benj. Dean, Democrat, vs. Walbridge A. Field, Republican, Massachusetts; Wm. A. Piper, Republican, vs. Horace Davis, California; Peter D. Wigginton, Democrat, vs. Romualdo Pacheco, Republican, California; Edward W. Roberts, Republican, vs. Chas. E. Nash, Democrat, Louisiana; Robert G. Frost, Democrat, vs. Lynn S. Metcalf, Republican, Missouri; Wm. Randolph, Republican, vs. Casey Young, Democrat, Tennessee; Joseph Segar, Republican, vs. John Goode, Jr., Democrat, Virginia; W. E. Hutton, Democrat, vs. Joseph J. Orgensen, Republican, Virginia; James B. Nutting, Republican, vs. James B. Riley, Democrat, Pennsylvania; John H. Hunsinger, vs. B. F. Marsh, Illinois; Benj. F. Wiley, Republican, vs. Wm. H. Hartsell, Democrat, Illinois; R. H. M. Davidson, Democrat, vs. Wm. J. Purman, Republican, Florida; Jesse F. Finley, Democrat, vs. Horatio Bisbee, Jr., Republican, Florida.

If merchants complain that many people go away from home to purchase goods, they must bear in mind that out of town merchants are sending circulars to our citizens, and advertising their goods in daily and county papers, while the home merchants, who do not advertise at all, are suffering from a bad trade. A business man who advertises never complains.

We clip the following sensible remarks from the Flenningsburg Democrat: "Spend your money where you make it; buy your goods at home and abroad; encourage your own mechanics; sustain your home paper; let each be for the other; and all for public improvement. Charity begins at home." Our town first, others afterwards.

The sculp law cost our tax payers in 1876 11,193.50. When will that law be repealed.

Gov. PINCHBACK, in an interview with the President, is quoted as having said that justice to the whites and mercy to the blacks alike protested against the recognition of the Packard government. The President is said to have replied that he would soon open a clear way to peace in Louisiana, and contentment to the people of that State.

Pinchback is a representative man of his race and the President ought to give his statement some weight.

We make the following extract from a letter of Secretary Fisk, to General John A. Dix.

"Much as I should lament that the power of the Government be entrusted for four years to the Democratic party, should prefer, if either party is to succeed with the taint of wrong or of fraud in its acquisition of power that it should be the party to which I am opposed, rather than that which I support.

"If either candidate should be placed in power with a reasonable, well-founded doubt as to his right to be there, his will be no enviable position, and the days of his party's supremacy will be numbered those of his own occupancy of a position thus acquired.

ESTRAYED. Taken up as a stray, by George R. Mercer, living four miles East of Whitesville, and in Ohio county, one Saw, apparently about four years old, black and white spotted, marked with a crop of both ears, no over bit in each and an upper cross nick in the right, and valued at seven dollars. Also five shoats, pigs of said sow, weighing about forty-five pounds each, one of them black and white spotted, the others white, all unmarked. One has been castrated, another is uncastrated, and the others unspayed sows, said pigs valued at two dollars and a half apiece.

Given under my hand this 24th February, 1877. GEORGE R. MERCER, J. P. O. C. 1349-41

Prof. J. C. Myers, formerly of Commercial College, Nashville, Tenn., will deliver a free lecture in Cromwell, Friday night. Subject, general education and the Eastman system of penmanship. Ladies and gentlemen are invited to attend.

The young folks had a gay old time at the Lyon House last Friday night. The merriment and gaiety of the occasion out in full force, and the hours sped merrily away. Among those in attendance, not citizens of town, we noted the presence of Miss Josie Lendrum of Calhoun, Mr. W. H. Murrell and his fair and lovely bride and Mr. George Cooper of Beaver Dam. By all means let us have a repetition of this enjoyable affair.

J. M. House has executed some of the nicest and most artistic work in the sign painting business we ever saw. Neat signs set off a town very much and next to advertising in the local paper, is the best investment a business man can make. All of you that have not already done so, get Mr. House to paint your appropriate signs and then put good liberal advertisements in the Herald, and we will hear no more of hard times among the business men of Hartford, soon.

Had the pearls gates opened and the beautiful angels of heaven descended, we would not have been more delighted than were we on last Saturday morning, when our sanctum was honored by a visit from four of Hartford's graceful, unassuming and charming young ladies, Misses Camelia and Minnie Shall and Misses Fannie Thompson and Emma Phillips. Indeed, our mind reeled for the time to forget the toil, patience, perplexities and complication of printer life, and live only in the future. We conducted them through the office and explained the mode of printing as best we knew. We are always glad to welcome those wishing to call.

Counterfeiters. Since our last issue, we learn of two more of our citizens that have come to grief by "shoving the queer." Mr. J. A. Murphy and Wm. Bright, thought it was so much easier to make a living by passing counterfeit money and getting good money in change, than working for it, they just quit work and started out at the business in good hard earnest. They stopped at Cromwell and got rid of ten dollars, then went on to Woodbury, Butler county and divested themselves of twenty-five dollars more. The marshal of Woodbury arrested them, and they were taken to Morgantown where they had an examining trial, and Bright was held to bail in the sum of one thousand and five hundred dollars, and Murphy in the sum of one thousand dollars. In default of bail they were put in jail.

John H. Evans, of Levi part, Hancock county, formerly of this county, was a rested by town marshal, Blainco, and delivered to W. H. Maury deputy U. S. Marshal here, yesterday. He was placed in jail and will be brought before United States Commissioner, Geo. C. Wedding, for trial on Friday next, under the same charge.

If the functions of the Liver are in any way disordered, the whole body, and not only the whole body, but the mind sympathizes with the disturbed organ. Bilious complaints are more common than any other disease; and to remove the bile, as well as to regulate the Liver, you only have to take Simmons' Liver Regulator, which will impart new life and vigor to the whole system.

For a Nice Sewing Machine at a price to suit the times, go to J. Winter & Co., Louisville. They have not only the best assortment, but their prices are uniformly low, and every garment is guaranteed. In the Custom Department are all the latest styles to be made to order, and they never fail to give a satisfactory fit. When you visit the city do not fail to see them.

Our friends, Holbrook & Rogers, of Buford, have concluded to quit the credit system on and after 1st of April. They propose to buy for cash, and get goods at the very lowest rates, and sell the same way for cash or produce. If every merchant in the land would adopt the same rule, it would be better for their customers. A man's credit has often been his ruin. A merchant that sells on credit has to pay more for his goods and has to sell them higher to save himself.

Death—At the residence of J. N. Sander, in No Creek, neighborhood, on the 22d inst., Mrs. Elizabeth Sander. She was in her seventy-seventh year, was the widow of Rev. Wm. Sander, deceased, and the mother of J. N. Sander, and sister to Mr. Obed Bennett, all of whom live in that locality. She was a devoted Christian, being a member of the M. E. Church South, for many past.

The State Medical Society will meet in Louisville, April 3d, at 10 o'clock, a. m., and continue in session, three days. The meeting will be held in Masonic Temple, corner Fourth and Jefferson Sts. The meeting promises to be one of the most profitable, professionally, and the most pleasant, socially, that has been held since the war. A cordial invitation is extended to all reputable physicians. The rail road will make some deductions in rates, and the hotels have agreed to make a reduction from regular rates. Under all these favorable arrangements, our physicians ought to go.

Penmanship. Prof. J. C. Myers, formerly of the Nashville Commercial College, is teaching a class of about forty scholars in penmanship. We had the pleasure of visiting the school on Saturday evening last, and could hardly trust our own eyes, when we saw what rapid improvement his pupils had made. This was the fifth lesson, each lesson occupying about one hour's time, and of course, it looked like a dream to see students writing nicely regularly and smoothly, who at the beginning could not write a legible hand and in fact, some could not write at all. The Professor teaches a system that is simple, easy and perfect. You can learn from him that all letters are made by only three different movements of the hand. He teaches the Eastman Lightning System. We have seen writing masters, but never saw one teach theory and system before, it was all practice. Professor Myers keeps the very best order in school and students soon learn that he means business, that his schools are not for sport, as some are. He aims to make every student get the best return for his investment possible. Prof. Myers deserves well at the hands of our people. Our young men missed it in not making him up a night school as it may be long time before they have such another chance to learn so much about penmanship for so little. The instructions given in regard to the manner of holding the pen, is worth the tuition fee. We do not hesitate to pronounce Prof. Myers one of the finest penmen in America. He took a gold medal premium over three hundred and eighteen contestants at the National Exhibition last year. Our neighboring towns would do well to secure his services while in this part of the country.

Hartford House. The wide-awake proprietor of this House, has recently given it a thorough overhauling and cleansing from cellar to garret. He has added a crate of new queensware to the dining-room, and many beds, bedsteads, carpets and other necessary furniture to the bedrooms. Best of all, he has added a brand new police, courteous clerk in the person of Mr. J. R. McDowell. Visitors attending court will find this House all ready to receive them.

Subscribe for the Herald Now. On the 18th of April next, we will begin the publication of the history of Ohio county, written by Mr. H. B. Taylor, mention of which was made in our last issue. We will also at the same time, enlarge the Herald to an eight column paper. We will also, on or before that time, publish our premium, list to subscribers for 1877. Now is the accepted time to subscribe. Do this at once and help us in our effort to help the whole county. Do not longer delay making a good investment.

MARRIED. EDMONSON-SANDERSON.—At the residence of the bride's father, J. B. Sander, on Thursday the 22d of March 1877, by Rev. G. J. Benn, Mr. William Edmonson to Miss Lavinia Sander.

A large number of the friends and relatives of the deceased, and those that dip not attend the wedding, attended the charivari that night. We wish the young couple who have set sail on the ocean of life, a bon voyage. May their craft glide smoothly and quietly on to the harbor of a good and quiet old age.

Letter From Scott County, Missouri. COMMERCIAL, SCOTT CO., MISSOURI, March 20th, 1877.

Editor Herald: May not I—albeit a novice in the literary field—claim a place in the columns of your valuable paper, in order to represent through the medium of the pen, this "wee" corner of Missouri, viz., Commerce; a flourishing, enterprising little town, situated on the banks of the Mississippi river, and containing nearly two thousand inhabitants. It is the seat of Scott county, and besides the neat churches, free school, etc., boasts of its printing office; from which is issued a weekly, the Commerce Dispatch, quite an ably edited little journal, but of course, nothing to compare to our own Hartford Herald, the nonpareil of newspapers.

The country lying adjacent to Commerce, so far as I have yet seen, is quite level. The soil is a rich sandy loam, and wonderfully productive, so said. Many farms of an hundred, or less acres, yielding fully twenty five hundred bushels of corn a season, aside from other farm products; while stock of all kinds appears to be a spontaneous production of the soil. Doves of horses, cattle and hogs run at large in the woods, the entire winter. The former are being brought in daily, to be used upon the farms, the latter, ready for market, and all fat and sleek as may be, of the cane and grass, which they find green all the winter. In short, this region might well be termed the farmers' Eldorado, although like any and every other spot this side of Elysium, it has its drawbacks, one of which is the rather unpalatable water, it being of a reddish color, and strongly impregnated with iron. Another, is the prevalence of much sickness during one or more of the mid-summer months. At present however, the health of the community is good.

By the way, there is one home feature I miss, 'tis the cherry whistle of the cars. We have no railroad nearer than Charles ton, in Mississippi county, sixteen miles distant. In lieu of the train, however, we have the daily passage, to and fro, of the floating palaces of the Mississippi, which is some compensation. Let I exhaust the traditional fund of patience, all editors are supposed to be endowed with, will conclude by adding, that if this be not consigned to the waste basket, will contribute occasional items from this little rock, situated upon the banks of the mighty "Father of waters." Resolutions of Respect. At a meeting of Poplar Grange, No. 782, Ohio county, Ky., March 10th 1877, the Grange appointed a committee to draft resolutions, whereupon, said committee reported as follows, the resolutions being adopted:

Resolved: That it has pleased God to remove by death, our beloved brother William Miller, who died the 24 day of March, 1877. Brother Miller was a pious member of the Christian church, as also of our order, age, 66 years. Resolved: That by the death of our worthy brother, the Grange has lost a sincere friend and brother, esteemed by all the members of the Grange and all good citizens, while the church may lament the loss of one of its best members. Resolved: That while we tender our sincere sympathy to those who were bound to our departed brother by the nearest and dearest ties, we acknowledge our inability to lift the burden of grief from their hearts and would direct them for consolation to God, who will comfort them.

The path of God and that path alone, leads to the land where sorrow is unknown. My willing soul would stay In such a place as this Would sit and sing itself away In ev'lasting bliss.

Brother Miller left a bereaved wife and five children. Bro. Miller was a brother of Dr. Miller dec., of Louisville. Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, a copy spread upon the minutes, and a copy be sent to the Courier-Journal, Louisville Commercial and the Hartford Herald, for publication.

EXTREMES OF HEAT AND COLD.

In a climate subject to the sudden and severe changes so frequent in ours, it is no wonder that multitudes in every community are afflicted with Catarrh, Bronchitis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and other such chronic ailments. But if all who are thus suffering were acquainted with a reliable remedy for such diseases, our valuable and uncertain climate would lose half its terrors for those inheriting delicate constitutions, or enfeebled by disease. Such a remedy has been discovered in the SEVEN SEALS or GOLDEN WONDER, which has been used with singular success by thousands of sufferers from diseases produced by exposure, and sudden changes in the atmosphere, and others that can be induced to try it, will assuredly experience the same benefit. This purely vegetable preparation is a certain cure for pains and aches, external or internal, acute or chronic, and as a pain destroyer is without a single successful rival.
